Dear Leader Thune, Leader Schumer, Speaker Johnson, Leader Jeffries, Chair Boozman, Ranking Member Klobuchar, Chair Thompson, and Ranking Member Craig,

We, the undersigned U.S. veterinary professionals, urge Congress to reject the so-called “Save Our Bacon” Act (H.R. 4673) and oppose attempts to include it or similar language (like Section 12006 in the House Farm Bill) in any legislative package. This harmful legislation would strip states and localities of their rights to pass a wide range of measures protecting animal welfare and public health.

The “Save Our Bacon” Act is being pushed by some in the pork industry in response to an aspect of California’s popular 2018 ballot initiative, Proposition 12, which was upheld as constitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court in 2023. Prop 12 states that eggs, pork and veal produced or sold in the state must come from facilities that give animals a modest amount of space —enough room to stand up, lie down, turn around, and extend their limbs.

While most of the egg industry decided years ago to heed consumer demand and is rapidly transitioning to cage-free facilities, the pork industry’s lobby instead chose to fight Prop 12 in court and in Congress. We note there is a split within the pork industry. Some pork producers represented by industry lobbyists still use “gestation crates,” metal cages so small the animals can’t turn around or take more than a step forwards or backwards, but many other producers who do not use extreme confinement support state laws like Prop 12.

Gestation crates severely harm female pigs. As pigs grow during pregnancy, the crate bars press against their bodies, which can lead to sores, injuries, prolapse, and infections. Because the crates severely restrict movement, pigs can suffer muscle weakening and compromised cardiovascular health.

The extreme confinement of pigs creates serious mental distress as well. Pigs are highly intelligent, social animals, and isolating them in individual cages so small they can barely move causes frequent repetitive, abnormal behaviors, such as chewing on metal bars. These behaviors are widely linked to stress, frustration, and boredom, and can themselves cause injuries like damaged teeth and mouths.

Hundreds of veterinarians and other scientific experts have supported Prop 12 because it will help people as well as improve animal health and welfare. In response to the lawsuit seeking to overturn Prop 12, the American Public Health Association, Infectious Diseases Society of America, and Center for Food Safety told the Supreme Court that Prop 12 would reduce risks involving food safety and zoonotic diseases that could cause a future pandemic. While the debate over Prop 12 is misleadingly being framed as California vs. the Heartland, states across the country, including Arizona, Ohio, Michigan, and Florida have also banned the extreme confinement of female pigs.

In addition, the "Save Our Bacon" Act is so sweeping that it could also erase other state and local animal welfare laws including those that represent progress for birds. One example is that it could eliminate laws that regulate the sale of foie gras. French for "fatty liver," foie gras is the diseased and enlarged liver of a duck or goose, produced through forcing a tube or pipe down the throats of the birds and force-feeding them abnormally large quantities of food. The birds are captured, restrained and force-fed multiple times a day until their livers swell up to ten times their normal size, at which point the birds are killed. Because of the inherent cruelty in force-feeding, the production of foie gras is widely condemned.

For all of the reasons above, the "Save Our Bacon" Act and any measure like it should be rejected and not included in the Farm Bill or any other legislative package.
